

DKSH Japan K.K.

Company Description

We help companies grow their business in existing markets and expand into new ones.

Founded more than 150 years ago in Yokohama in 1865 by Hermann Siber and Caspar Brennwald, DKSH today is a major contributor to culture and business in Japan. Our strong roots result in the unique way we do business, where the cultures of Japan and Switzerland – of Asia and Europe – harmoniously complement one another.

We have learned to steer a clear course between these two distinctive cultures, bringing the best of both worlds together to serve the ever- evolving needs of our business partners. Our reputation is founded on consistency in partnerships and long-term engagement and we are proud of our employees who are still driven by the same pioneering spirit that inspired our founders.

Japan is a sophisticated and complex market with high barriers to entry for western companies. Regardless of company size or geographic location, and no matter whether consumer goods, specialty chemicals and ingredients for food and cosmetics, or advanced machinery are involved, our DKSH specialists have a deep understanding of the way business in Japan works.
