Job Description

About the company

We are currently looking for DevOps / SRE / SysOps Engineers to join an extremely well-funded, growing company with a secured long-term project company within the financial services industry.

This company is backed by several major global investors and whilst they are still a young company – the funds and banks investing in them are large so will have a very big future

You will be joining a very experienced team of highly skilled developers and general technologists - plus your impact on the organization will be huge if you join this project in the early stages.

Those involved have a lot of financial services industry knowledge and exceptional track records –and look for people who share the passion for creating great things to join the team, plus you don't need to have previous financial services knowledge

Who are you

♦ You will be familiar with AWS or Azure.

♦ You will be passionate about building completely new systems from scratch.

Why you should apply

♦ You will be given the space and confidence to grow in your career as well as a person.

♦ The company has a collaborative focus on fostering an open, safe, inclusive and stimulating working environment for all employees.

♦ It's an exceptional opportunity to be part of an international network of colleagues who are keen to share their knowledge with you.
