Job Description

[About the Company]

The company is a start-up IT venture that aims to create a digital infrastructure for alternative assets.

Currently, the company is trying to build an illiquid asset platform in the real estate industry, which is one of the alternative assets.

However, they believe that this is a "pathway to the worldview they are aiming for.

They are currently working on seamlessly promoting digitalization in the real estate domain, based on the hypothesis that investment demand for alternative assets will increase in the future, and their future business development will be based on this hypothesis.

Specifically, wine, art, laundromats, and solar power generation can be considered.

About the Services

① Mobile App

It is a mobile app for real estate owners that enables easy management of income-producing real estate regardless of location, whether at home or on the road. It helps to realize better investment.

② Business Platform

A digital platform connecting property management companies and owners.

Owner communication using mobile apps improves the efficiency of management operations and reduces costs.

③ Asset Management

Real estate professionals support inbound real estate investment.

They are currently based in Tokyo, Shanghai, Taipei, Hong Kong, and New York.

[Job Description]

In this position, you will drive the business through project management.

You will have a diverse experience in an environment close to the business side, starting with development project management.

"WealthPark Business", a business support SaaS that connects real estate owners and property management companies through an application, has been in service since September 2017 and is currently used by approximately 110,000 property owners and 160 property management companies.

[Recruitment Background]

With the expansion of DX business for real estate developers, especially "WealthPark Business" development projects for major real estate developers, brokers and management companies, the importance and management complexity in the business is increasing, and the company is looking for a project manager who can drive the business through development in an ambiguous environment. They welcome applications from experienced project managers as well as project managers and scrum masters who wish to broaden their skill sets!

[Responsibilities]

You will be part of a team that reports directly to the CTO for this position.

You will be responsible for managing complex product development, improvement, and integration projects with the VP and CTO.
