Company Profile

The Chief Data Officer (CDO) is a pivotal executive role responsible for driving the company's data strategy and governance. This position aims to transform the organization into a data-driven entity by leveraging data and AI to create business value, enhance customer experience, and improve competitive positioning.

The Role

- Develop and implement a comprehensive data strategy that aligns with business goals.
- Collaborate with business leaders to identify and deliver data-driven growth opportunities.
- Foster a data-driven culture supporting decision-making and business impact.
- Define and manage the enterprise data management strategy.

- Ensure data is treated as a strategic asset and maintain the quality of critical data.
- Update and enforce the Data and AI Governance framework, policies, and procedures.
- Oversee data and AI initiatives in compliance with industry regulations, including data privacy and security.
- Develop and implement a data and AI literacy program for employees.
- Build and manage a high-performing data team.

Your Skills

- Strong leadership skills with experience leading cross-functional teams.
- Excellent communication skills, capable of conveying complex data concepts to non-technical audiences in English and Japanese.
- Proven track record in leading data and AI initiatives and executing data strategies.
- Strong analytical and problem-solving skills.
- Expertise in analytics tools such as Python, SQL, and Hadoop.
- Experience in building and validating data models.
- Bachelor's degree in a relevant field; a master's degree is preferred.
- Deep understanding of data management technologies and AI-related technologies.
- Knowledge of data privacy and security regulations.

Location

Tokyo 23 Wards

Salary

18M - 23M JPY

Selling points

- High exposure to local and global executives, providing significant impact opportunities.
- Primary work location is flexible, with minimal travel required.
- Direct influence on the company's data-driven transformation and strategic decision-making.
- Opportunity to work with cutting-edge technologies and drive innovation within the organization.
- Collaborative environment with regular interaction with key stakeholders across various functions and regions.
