募集要項

This is a strategic position in a major financial institution's head office risk division, focusing on emerging risk domains such as sustainability (e.g. climate, human rights) and non-financial risk (e.g. reputation, third-party risk). You'll help define risk governance frameworks, lead cross-functional risk assessments, and drive innovation in how non-traditional risks are measured and managed across the firm.

Client Details

Our client is a globally recognized Japanese financial group with a strong commitment to ESG and sustainable finance. Their risk management division is known for being forward-thinking, offering close collaboration with executive leadership, international exposure, and meaningful involvement in Japan's evolving regulatory and sustainability landscape.

Description

- Plan and manage sustainability risk initiatives (climate risk quantification, disclosure, ESG rules)
- Define and operate risk governance frameworks for climate change and human rights in investment and lending
- Drive scenario analysis and trend tracking related to international standards and regulations
- Oversee governance of reputational, economic security, third-party, and other non-financial risks
- Collaborate with senior leadership, overseas teams, and external regulators

Job Offer

- High-impact work in one of Japan's most strategic ESG risk teams
- Career track to global roles or sustainability leadership within the group

スキル・資格

- Experience in risk, corporate planning, compliance, or sustainability in financial services or consulting
- Native-level or fluent Japanese language proficiency
- Interest in non-financial risk frameworks and sustainable finance
- Strong project ownership, stakeholder coordination, and regulatory awareness
- English communication skills
- Experience in bank head office, risk, or ESG governance is a plus
